Principles of Working with Individuals with Learning Disabilities

Recent statistics suggest that there are around 350,000 people with severe or profound learning disabilities living in the UK. Those affected by a learning disability require support in various areas of life. Our nationally recognised qualification is designed to provide an understanding of the principles required to ensure that an individual with learning disabilities is provided with high-quality person-centred care and, on achievement, evidences that the learner has fully understood these key principles.

The qualification looks at the knowledge and understanding of the key principles of caring for an individual with learning disabilities. Upon successful completion learners are awarded the Certificate in Principles of Working with Individuals with Learning Disabilities.

What does the course cover?

Each member of staff will be provided with high-quality and engaging support materials that provide the knowledge and understanding required to undertake the end of unit assessments. The course covers:

How is it delivered?

The course is usually delivered over a period of 12 weeks. Alongside the learning materials you will have the support of a knowledgeable assessor/tutor who will give you support, advice and guidance on the course content as well as providing robust feedback on the work you complete. Successful completion of this course ensures that the learner has fully understood these important principles. This evidence can support some of the key training needs within the sector.

What is the cost?

Due to the availability of government funding, this qualification is usually available at no cost. Funded places are limited so please book early to secure your place. Funding is subject to learners meeting set eligibility criteria; this will be provided prior to the start of any course. Please note that a fee of £100 is payable if learners decide to withdraw from the course and do not complete their assessments. Learners must want to independently enrol onto the course.
